

Yang Lu

Analyst – Base Metals

Yang Lu joined Thomson Reuters GFMS as a metals analyst in September 2010, contributing to the research and analysis of the base metals and steel markets. She assists in the production of a number of GFMS' reports and is particularly focused on developments in Chinese market, embarking on a number of research trips to the country each year.

Yang holds a first degree in Economics from Zhejiang University, and an MSc in Development Studies from the London School of Economics.